Mr. Lowery,

I am sending this email to let you know my thoughts on the proposed rule change of ballasting with fuel instead of water. My concerns are as follows:

I am concerned that even if the tank is completely full of fuel, and a big rain happens, the tank will still float and in turn cause a spill as well as damage to the new fuel system.

We have had tank float even when full of fuel. We have not had any tanks float since we have been ballasting with water.

Please feel free to let me know if you have additional questions.

Thank you,
